

Donate Life Month

Kansas City Life Group Benefits is a proud supporter of Donate Life Month in April. This month is all about bringing awareness to and giving life to others through organ, eye, and tissue donation.

Did you know that major organ transplant and kidney failure are considered critical illness conditions? When it comes to choosing a health care plan, many people may be challenged with the decision to pay more out-of-pocket every month or pay less and run the risk of having higher costs down the line, which is why Critical Illness Insurance can be important.

What is Critical Illness Insurance and how can we help?

Critical Illness Insurance is a product that can help pay for treatments not covered by health plans. It pays a lump-sum benefit upon diagnosis of a covered critical illness. The benefit received may help out with costs for care and treatment, recuperation, or lost income. Kansas City Life offers the Critical Illness Insurance coverage with the flexibility your clients need at an affordable price.
